The Norman C. Dion Building

Dedicated on May 5, 1989

Dean Donald Clayton Howard

Every university has its legend and SMU is no exception. Our legend is very much alive and has an office in the administration building. This office is always full of students and its door is always open. Our legend's name is Donald C. Howard and we who have spent four years under his wing see his office as a perfect metaphor for his heart.

Officially, his title is Dean of Students, but it could just as easily be "Friend of Students", for such Donald Howard has been during the last twenty three years. Eloquent and persuasive, he is always willing to speak for students, to right their wrongs, to promote their dreams, to make real their hopes, and to introduce them to the world of their choosing. He has a gift for counseling and considers it a major function of his position to make himself truly available to those who seek his guidance. A champion of causes and people, he is that rare individual in any community, educational or otherwise, who spends without hesitation the riches of his spirit and his days on others.

Dean Howard's involvement with student organizations and activities has been extensive and productive. Individuals in the process of choosing graduate schools or starting careers also find Dean Howard's assistance invaluable and unstinting. From writing thoughtful recommendations to helping graduates find the right job, he so genuinely wants what is best for others, that instinctively they put their hopes in his hands and their trust in his advice. Nor does his interest in his students end when they are handed their degrees. He remains a presence in their lives through the years, attending their weddings, encouraging their careers, comforting their sorrows, sharing their triumphs.

Donald Clayton Howard

Dean Howard with Massachusetts Senator John Kerry

True to form, Dean Howard is as active in the affairs of the community as he is in the life of the University. He devotes much time and energy to the political causes and candidates he judges honorable and worthy. In turn, he is counted a respected friend whose discerning judgment and shrewd political insight are sought by governmental leaders at all levels from Governor and U.S. Senators to members of the state legislature.

A staunch promoter of the arts and humanities Dean Howard has been a consistent force over the years in securing major student financial backing for those programs and projects that culturally enrich not only the learning atmosphere of the University but that of the region as well. In his role as chairman for nineteen years and in more recent times as co-chairperson of the SMU Lecture Series Committee he has played a principal part in bringing to the campus some of the world's most famous authors, political leaders, stars of stage and screen, and television personalities. To all of them he has been the University's gracious host.

When students and alumni talk about Dean Howard, as they often do, a theme emerges, certain key words and phrases are heard over and over again: all speak of his compassion and unconditional support, his sage advice, his willingness to invest chunks of time and self to listen, to guide, to illuminate, to rescue those in emotional jeopardy. With a perceptiveness that penetrates as sharply as a laser beam, he sees the potential beneath an individual's often misleading surface. And once he sees it, he delights in helping that person uncover it, shape it, develop it. He is a true miner of diamonds in the rough. And many a human gem flashes brilliantly today because of Dean Howard's determination to convince his charges of their own worth.

It is perhaps as the consummate mentor that he would most wish to be remembered, for in this role - in this vocation - he has no peer. All his considerable people skills, all his humanistic beliefs and generosity of spirit, his mischievous wit and innate wisdom, the cosmopolitan perspective and brilliant scope of his well-nourished mind - all these come together to make him not only a gifted counselor, but a cherished one. It is true that his methods may be somewhat unorthodox, combining as they do, complete acceptance of an individual with a little good-natured needling, intense and patient listening with what one former student has called "A unique way of 'whacking you on the side of the head' to unleash your potential." But, above all, his methods are effective. Through the futures of those whom he nurtures, through their careers and personal lives, his influence sends out ripples.

"The Dean" is a man whose life hums with contentment. He loves his work; he relishes the friendships he makes; he is enchanted with the variety of his experiences. He is a strong personality, colorful, courageous, rich with opinions and loyalties, intensely dedicated. Despite his sophistication, he has not lost his sense of honor, nor a certain appealing innocence, nor a talent for joy. It is this that he communicates to us, thus that he inspires us. Winston Churchill, one of Dean Howard's own great inspirations, said:

Don't take no for an answer, never submit to failure. Do not be fobbed off with mere personal success or acceptance. You will make all kinds of mistakes; but as long as you are generous and true, and also fierce, you cannot hurt the world or even distress her.

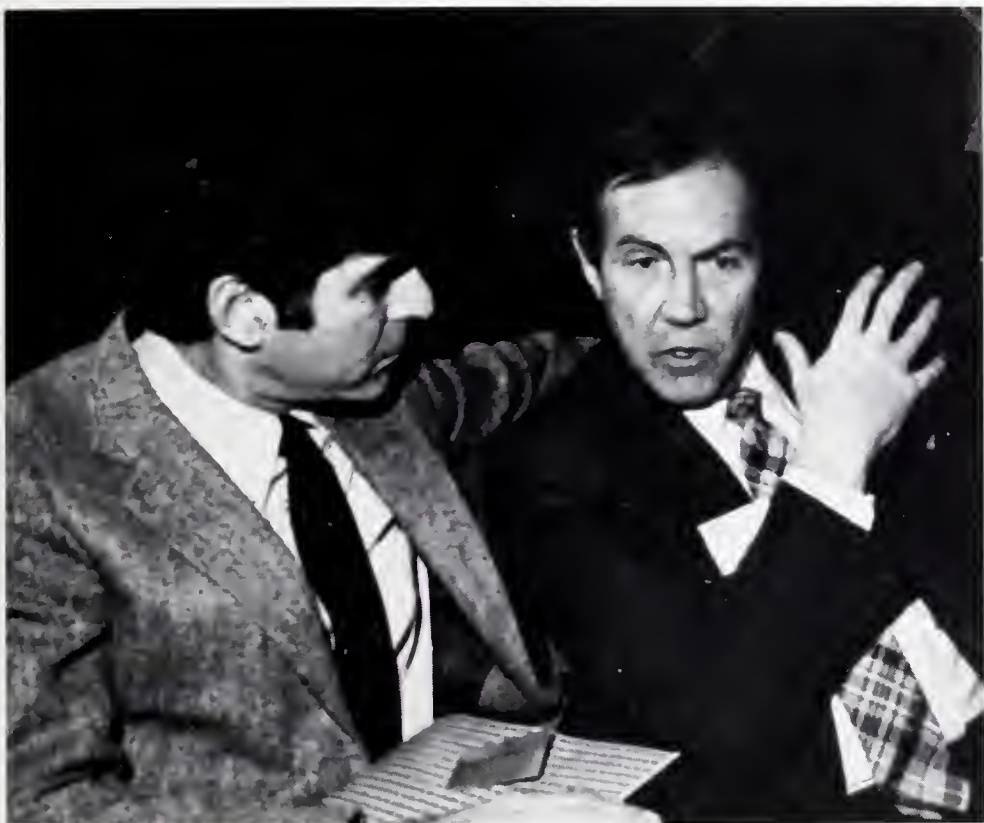

And so, Dean Howard, because you have been "generous and true, and also fierce" and by being so, made our burdens lighter, our paths clearer and our futures full of hope, we dedicate this book to you.

To the Class of '89:

For most, the time spent in college is a time of personal change. It is a time of intellectual growth and affective development, a time when personality and perspective expand, a time when one comes to grips with important issues of self and society.

Members of the class of 1989 have, I hope, experienced these things. But you have also been fortunate to witness important changes in the topography of your University. During your stay, the Swain School of Design merged into the College of Visual and Performing Arts, the curriculum became "computerized," we began several new graduate programs, a new science and engineering building and a new dormitory complex were completed, intercollegiate football was resumed, and so on.

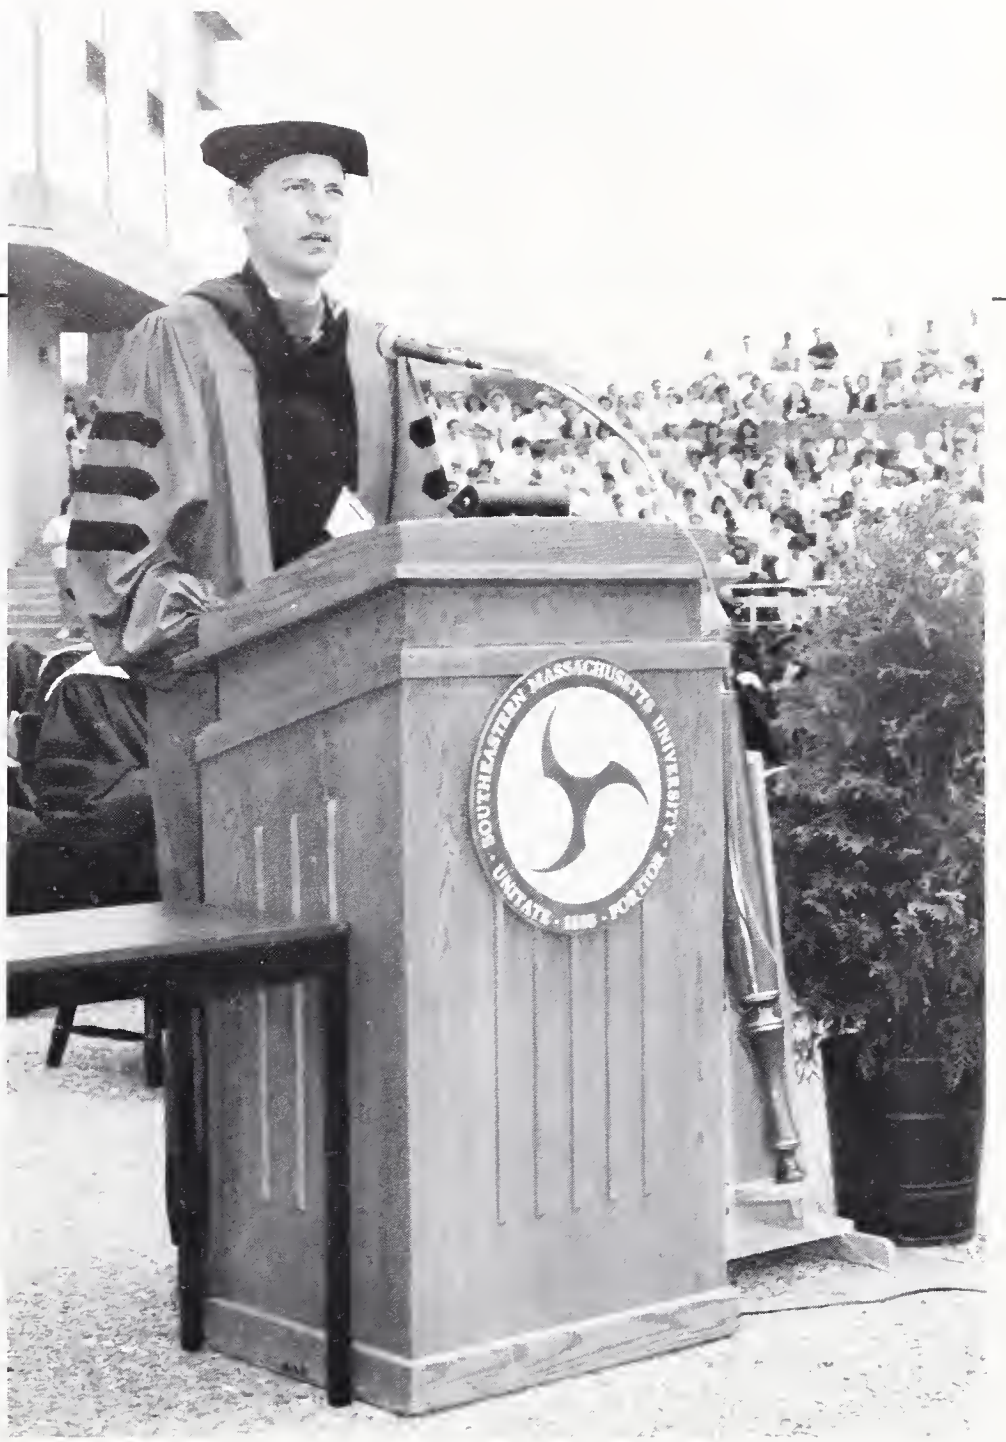

In one sense, you are not the same person you were when you arrived here. In another sense, while you may be different in many important respects, you are also still you. Similarly, SMU is not the same University you first encountered, but it is still SMU. As I write this there has been considerable discussion about "reorganizing" higher education in the Commonwealth and of SMU adopting a new name. These things may or may not come to pass, but whatever changes occur, if any, you may rest assured SMU will continue, in the second sense, to be SMU. If identity is at least part process and part continuity of purpose and if there is at its core an essence unmitigated by events, SMU will remain SMU by whatever name.

Sincerely,

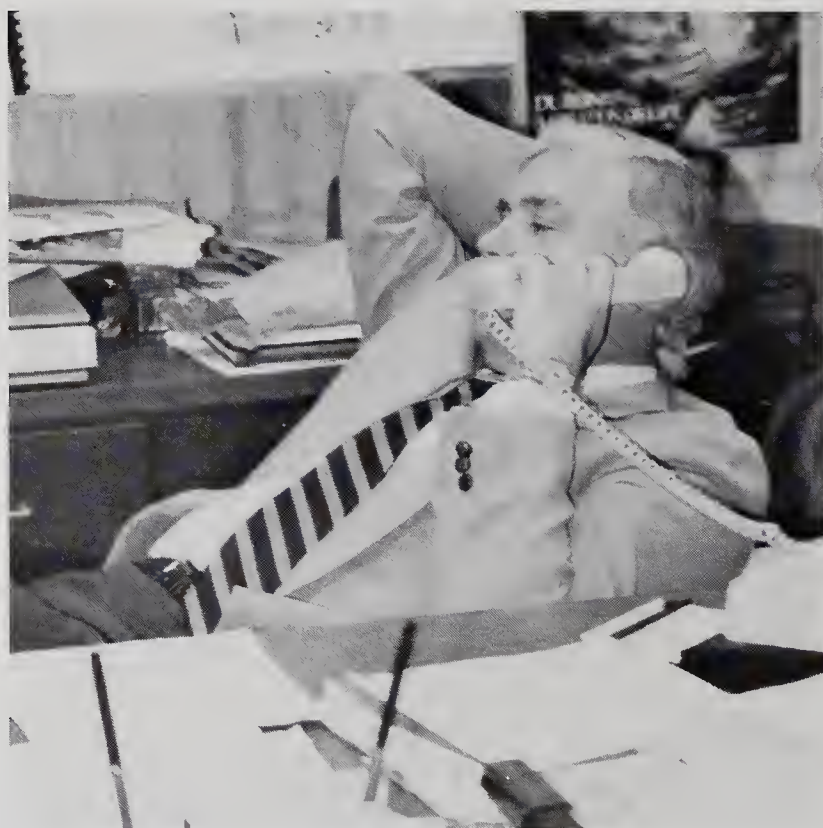

John R. Brazil

The Mile

People come into our lives
And walk with us a mile
And then because of circumstance
They only stay a while.
They serve their need within their days
That pass so quickly by.
Then they're gone without a trace
We often wonder why.
God only knows why we meet
And share a simple smile
Why people come into our lives
And walk with us a mile.

-Anonymous

In memory of Kristen Engstrom,
August 12, 1967-April 29, 1988.

Wandering alone, I looked up to the sky and contemplated the clouds.

In these trying times we find ourselves seeking reason in a patternless reality.

Finding our way through the tangled paths of life, we decide our own way, hoping our decision is best.

If we should lose our way we must remember a day when the sun did shine.

And on this journey, we carry with us a little part of all those we have met.

Some of these memories fade, and some remain with us always, as perfect as the day we held them for the first time.

And as I ponder the day when my journey shall end, I realize, I care not if my memory fades or lives on beyond me.

I care only that those that I have touched may be happier and their step a little lighter.

Dr. Robert P. Pallatroni

Bob had a special gift.

More than a talent, more than a skill, - a gift

His work was infused with it, his world view ordered and strengthened by it, as a teacher, as a therapist, as a friend.

After his death, talking to his colleagues, his students, his clients, it was obvious that he was a unique person. People liked him. They liked him very much. People who knew little more than Bob's public persona liked him, they saw the essential gift he had, and understood that it was a gift for them as well.

Talking to people, listening to what they said, the fact of the gift became apparent.

"He makes me feel as though he cared about me, cared about how I felt" said one person.

"Even in a large lecture, I felt as though he were talking to me, that it made a difference to him if I understood or not" observed a student

"He always had a smile for me" recalled an associate

"He made me feel important, he always stopped to say hello"

"Warm, funny; kind, caring, a real person, a great guy"

Not just a few people felt this way- lots of people felt these things.

Will Rogers said that he never met a man that he didn't like - I never met a person that didn't like Pal. I think that was because of his gift.

The gift of affirmation.

Affirmation in the sense of confirming the existence, the reality of the other person, the trueness of the other person.

Affirmation in the sense of the confirmation of the positive qualities of goodness of the other person.

Pal was real. He understood that other people were not shadow figures that they were real, real ideas, real feelings, real fears, real hopes. He saw the essential reality in the other person.

And he understood the essential positiveness, the goodness of the other. he trusted that the fundamental nature of the other person was good, that the prisoner was good, that the drug addict was good, that the explosive, delinquent adolescent was good, that the dysfunctional parent was good.

To affirm. To recognize the existence, to confirm the fact of a person's essential goodness, and worth is a wonderful thing to give that person. It is made even more wonderful when the person is troubled, or alone or afraid.

As a psychologist, Bob belonged to a theoretical school which places great emphasis on the working alliance between therapist and patient.

As Fisher observed:

Authentic therapy emerges only if the doctor can hit upon a true way of being with the patient, a way that is not solemnly helpful, or a way of making money and being important, or a way of satisfying his need for dominance and potency. This genuineness employs nascent skills-sensitivity and imagination and compassion - which are aroused by the problems and the nature of the particular patient.

Bob had this working alliance with many of us. We are confirmed in our essential reality and our essential goodness because of it.

It is Bob's gift to us. It is a gift we are compelled to share with others.

Eulogy on the occasion of a memorial mass celebrated for Robert Pallatroni, Ph.D., Professor of psychology; given by Dr. James B. Riley, professor of psychology

Dr. Francis X. O'Brien

Rose-lipped maidens ... lightfoot lads.

You let us live so freely. You weighed on us so lightly.
Whether 3 or 93 we be, we were laddies and lassies all.
You distracted us with grace. You disarmed us with humor.
And all the while, you had a hand upon the helm of a ship larger than we could see.

We gather as a community: each touched - each deeply marked - not by brute force - but by the gossamer tugs of your civility. "The true test of civilization" - Emerson saw - was "Not in the census ... and not in the crops, ...but in the kind of man the country turns out." Civilization is a commons, but it is the work and gift of a few like you.

Who made a man so straight and true as you?

We gather as community. We know you many ways: as son, as brother, as husband, and as father — as citizen, seaman, mentor, colleague and as a friend. But we knew a single face: "an honest thought ...a common good ...a gentle life ...so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world "This was a man!"

With each of us you set a course and made a mark upwind - bare poles or full sail - your joy as much the journey as in the journey's end.

Who made a man so straight and true as you?

How proud must a family be to have engendered and nurtured such a man! How proud you were of them.

Most know you loved the sea - and snails and worms and starfish and slimy creatures of the deep. But another love was language - English - from Pope to Pinafore, to simply the richness of her verbs. 'Tis uncommon in a man - when barely past one-and-twenty - to take Shakespeare with his salt. But you saw a special quest: What should a man do? What dose a man's life mean? That was pure biology. Your answers were your deeds.

With Louis Agassiz you contemplated the wisdom of the Creator as manifest in the works of His Creation. But you also sat alone - and the end of the day, when the books were closed and microscope light turned out - you let the Creator's gift of thought hold sway. The imagination fired - "a chaos of delight."

The instant
As trivial as it is
Is all we have
Unless- unless
Things the imagination feeds upon,
The scent of the rose.
Startle us anew. (William Carlos Williams)

John Kennedy in Dublin found the future in: men who can dream of things that never were." Your loves of the sea and of nature and of the language were fuel for the fires of your mind. You loved others - such as Tennyson - who had sailed this route before:

Flower in the crannied wall,
I pluck you out the crannies.
I hold you here, root and all, in my hand.
Little flower - but if I could understand
What you are, root and all, and all in all,
I should know what God and man is.

But you did not voyage alone. Life was to be shared. You came to Southeastern Massachusetts University over 20 years ago to help build a university - to help shape our community. It was - after your family - the love of your life. And oh, how you did toil. It was not just a place to work, but a place to build dreams. And you knew - like Whitehead - that it took a special mix to make it work: " The justification of a university is that it preserves the connection between knowledge and the zest for life, by uniting the young and the old in the imaginative consideration of learning. The university imparts information, but it imparts it imaginatively ...A university which fails in this respect has no reason for existence."

Year after year we collect the memories that pass and draw them together for everyone to see and keep for days to come. Every year seems just like the last, it is only the faces that slowly change. Day after day we search for new ideas, but they all seem the same. Slowly, ever slowly, we decide on just the right picture, just the right phrase, and just the right combination, to hold these memories.

It is often that a memory slips by, forever lost. We can not relive the moments, only present what we have, hoping they are enough to bring back the thoughts of yesterday.

The loss of the memories that have slipped by is indeed a sad one. We hope that those we do have for you will bring back the days once lived and spark the imagination of the future.

We thank you for trusting us with the care taking of your past.

Sincerely,
Those who brought you the 1989 Scrimshaw
